BEAUTIFYING CITY HALL.

The City Hall has been washed on the outside, the yard has been sodded, a handsome new fence set up in the front and the little seat of municipal government, politics, etc., puts up a better appearance than it could ever have before; even when newly built. Mrs. J. M. Fitch, who occupies a cottage adjoining the City Hall property is lending a helping hand toward making the place attractive. She has superintended for the most part the work that has been done. Mrs. Fitch had a say as to where the flowers beds should be laid out and what flowers were to be planted in them. In fact she planted the flowers herself. A rock roadway has been made from the street back through the yard into the rear of the jail lot.

Chas. Furrow has several silk worms which he has been cultivating for sometime. He had an exhibition in his shop last week a coil of silk one of the worms had made and it was a very interesting thing to study.

THE MAN WHO WILL SPEAK.

On next Friday evening the principal address in connection with the Cloverport High School Commencement will be delivered by Prof. A. S. Mackenzie.

The News has secured the following sketch of his career from A. Wallace Bahbage at the State College of Kentucky, Lexington, at which institutions our prospective visitor occupies the chair of English and Logic.

Three thousand miles distant is Caledonia Moor where in 1746 was fought the last battle in the British Isles. Near the thick pine-woods is the resting place of the gallant Scottish Highlanders, and there where his forefathers sleeps was born this kinsman to the old Earl of Seaford.

His higher education was received at the universities of Glasgow, Edinburgh and Oxford. Among his teachers were Lord Kelvin, the greatest of living physicists and the man who superintended the first Atlantic cable, Richard Jebb, the famous Greek scholar, and Edward Caird, Master of Balliol College, Oxford.

We have all heard of Dan MacIntyre, the man who wrote "The Bonnie Brer Bush," a work which is dramatized form has placed Maule Adams in the front rank of American actresses. With this author Prof. Mackenzie was associated in the motherland, even as in his adopted country he enjoys the friendship of Lloyd Mitchell, the most gifted of American sonnet writers.

It was in the fall of 1899 that Prof. Mackenzie came to Kentucky from Philadelphia. He is one of the twelve members of the Royal Asiatic Society, which exists for the purpose of research in Oriental language and literature. He belongs to other learned societies of Europe and America, and has a reputation for the highest scholarship. Last year the French Government invited him to read a treatise at the International Congress which met in Algiers, Africa.

Of his qualities as a public speaker the people of Breckenridge county can judge for themselves on Friday night. He is in great demand as an instructor and lecturer at Teachers Institutes.

DOING FINE BUSINESS.

Stephensport, Ky., May 15.—Smith, Tinsin & Co., saw and stove mill at Stephensport is doing a fine business. They employ two or twelve hands and are turning out a lot of lumber and staves. They manufacture apple and lumber barrels and expect to supply that section with all the apple barrels they need this fall. They have a fine plant, well equipped for the business.

The Virginians will hear him at Richmond next month and his Kentucky engagements for the coming season comprise eight or nine concerts.

Professor Mackenzie is favorably known to the Freemasons of this Commonwealth. It was he who wrote the first history of Lexington Lodge which was originally chartered by Virginia in 1788. He is Past High Priest of the oldest chapter of Royal Arch Masons, and has been Prelate of the Webb commandery of Knight Templars.

Cloverport appreciates the honor of a visit from one who has traveled in so many foreign countries, and Prof. J. P. King is to be congratulated upon securing one who is recognized everywhere as a scholar and a gentleman.

When Professor Mackenzie's new book on "The Evolution of Literature" issues from the press, many copies ought to find their way into the cultured homes of our community.

No children have been born to the union.

Mr. Freeman is an Episcopalian of the old English school and remains today faithful to her church. For many years she taught Episcopalian Sunday school in the Riddle building destroyed by the fire of '01. She remembers well the names of her scholars and talks of them to her visitors. She is a reader of classic literature and says newspapers are "nothing but trash." She talks freely to those to whom she takes a liking, always saying "exactly what she thinks." "I pray God every day to take me home," says she "for I have lived long enough in this world."

Mr. Freeman is a student and a well-posted man.

BRECKENRIDGE CROPS.

Hardinburg May 10.—Wheat is looking fine in this section; the seedlings look fairly well and grow now last winter is coming up nicely. Some plowing has been done and preparation has been made for corn planting and oat sowing. The farmers are also preparing for a medium-sized tobacco crop. A fair crop of fruit is expected. Hogs and mules are selling at good prices, but there is not much trade in the cattle market. Hogs have been high for some time and buyers ship them out as fast as they can make a load. Sheep seem to be doing well.—Farm Journal.

These Absence Explained.
During an acrimonious debate in the house shortly before the civil war Mr. Potter of Wisconsin made some very sharp remarks on Mr. Pryor of Virginia. The result was a challenge from Pryor to fight a duel, which Potter promptly accepted, naming as terms twelve knives, five pistols, terms which he well knew Pryor would not dare to accept, as he was a small man, while Potter was a large, powerful man and familiar with the use of the bowie knife. Pryor declined on the ground that the proposed terms were beneath the dignity of a gentleman to accept, and so the matter ended. But on the day following the challenge, while the result was still unknown, both Potter and Pryor were absent from the legislature, and when Potter's name was called a member rose and in loud voice said, "Mr. Speaker, I am informed that the gentleman from Wisconsin has a Prior engagement." And when Pryor's name was called a moment later he rose again, saying, "Mr. Speaker, I hear that the gentleman from Virginia has gone to be as clay in the hands of the Potter."

Double Thinking.
Professor Jastrow, writing in the Popular Science Monthly of the causes of certain lapses of speech, recalls the singular power that Sir Walter Scott, among others, possessed of conducting two trains of thought at the same time. When his mind developed this power, he enabled his powerful mind to find ways of expressing a thought already formed while at the same time shaping the next thought period in rapid succession. An instance is given by Scott's amanuensis, who relates that while dictating the novelist would sometimes search through a book, finding and reading a passage, thus keeping two trains of thoughts going simultaneously. The amanuensis discovered the fact that Scott was doing his work in this brain through the occasional occurrence in the dictation of a word which did not fit in the sentence, but four or five lines farther on the place where the word belonged would turn up.

Over-Work Weakens Your Kidneys.

Healthy Kidneys Make Impure Blood.

All the blood in your body passes through your kidneys once every three minutes.

The kidneys are your blood purifiers; they filter out the waste or impurities in the blood. If they are sick or out of order, they fail to do their work. Pains, aches and rheumatism come from excess of uric acid in the blood, due to neglected kidney trouble.

Kidney trouble causes quick or uneasy heart beats, and makes one feel as though they had heart trouble. Because the heart and the extraordinary effect of Dr. Klinger's Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy is so rapid. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases and is sold on its merits by all druggists in fifty-cent and one-dollar sizes. You may have a sample bottle by mail. Send for it. It will tell you how to find the kidney or bladder trouble.

KIDNEY TROUBLES

Increasing Among Women, But Sufferers Need Not Despair
THE BEST ADVICE IS FREE

Of all the diseases known, with which the female organism is afflicted, kidney disease is the most fatal, and statistics show that this disease has increased among women.

Unless early and correct treatment is applied, the patient seldom survives when once the disease is fastened upon her. We believe Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is the most efficient treatment for chronic kidney troubles of women, and is the only medicine especially prepared for this purpose.

When a woman is troubled with pain or weight in loins, backache, frequent painful or scalding urination, swelling of limbs or feet, swelling under the eyes, an uneasy, tired feeling in the region of the kidneys or notices a sediment in the urine, she should lose no time in commencing treatment with Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, as it may be the means of saving her life.

For proof, read what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound did for Mrs. Sawyer.

"I cannot express the terrible suffering I had to endure. A derangement of the female organs developed nervous prostration and serious kidney trouble. The doctor attended me for a year, but I kept getting worse, until I was unable to do anything, and I made up my mind I could not live. I finally decided to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound as a last resort, and I am to-day a well woman. I cannot praise it highly, and I tell every suffering woman about my case."

Will How Tail Judgment Der.
There is a shivery, shivery legend among the people who live along the Hudson river which is the effect that stream is the everlasting boiling waters of a specter who is personified as Rantoul Van Dam.

Every week in colonial times Rantoul and his friends were drinking until late at night. Finally this man Rantoul started for home, some distance up the river, in his boat, aware that he would row the distance if it took "a month of Sundays." Rantoul never reached home, and the superstitions people say that he has been condemned to row till judgment day.

His Daughter.
A gentleman who was once stopped by an old man begging replied, "Don't you know, my man, that fortune knocks once at every man's door?"

"Yes," said the old man, "he knocked at my door once, but I was out, and ever since then he has sent his daughter."

"His daughter?" replied the gentleman. "What do you mean?"

"Why, Miss Fortune."

The Usual Way.
"To the blanks means to keep up appearances since they lost the greater part of their fortune."

"They don't look that about appearance. They just use what little money they have to make themselves comfortable."—Detroit Free Press.

A CABLE TO TOBINSPOORT.

Free telephone communication to Tobinsport is what Cloverport ought to have. It will save more business for Cloverport, a closer relationship between the two towns, a source of mutual benefit to both. As it is now, Tobinsport has free telephone communication over the Cumberland line with five counties, Hancock being among them. Tobinsport talks to Campbell without charge and this is the means of much trade going to Campbell that ought to come across the river to Cloverport. The majority of the people in Tobinsport want free telephone communication with Cloverport and are willing to help bring about the laying of a cable. They have gone so far as to authorize Mr. J. K. Groves to make a proposition to the City Council as to what they will do. Mr. Groves will shortly appear before the Council on the subject. Doubtless all the money the city can spare will be voted for this very necessary and very important project. Every business man in town should rally to the support of the men who are endeavoring to bring the laying of this cable to a reality.

VINOL'S RELIABILITY

Countless Physicians Join With Short & Haynes in Recommending Vinol.

Countless physicians and druggists are now prescribing and endorsing Vinol as the most valuable food preparation known to medicine, and it is fast superseding all other forms of cod liver oil.

As prominent physician writes: "I am satisfied that Vinol derives its wonderful life-giving and strength-creating power from the medicinal nutritive elements found in the cod's liver. It is the best strength creator and revitalizer for old people, weak women, children, and the convalescent."

Another physician writes: "I could cite many cases where health has been restored in a surprisingly short time by Vinol. I should be very sorry to have to do without Vinol in my practice. It has no equal for hard colds, chest and lung troubles."

Now, when we tell you we have never sold in our store a remedy of such remarkable nutritive and strength-creating power as Vinol for the weak, the sick and the aged, and that it will take to accomplish what we say it will, we will return your money without question, no alling person need hesitate to try Vinol with such an understanding.

In cases where cod liver oil emulsions and other tonics fail, Vinol will heal, strengthen and cure. Short & Haynes.

The farmers have taken to advertising in town, and they say they are making money by it. "I sold $200 worth of hogs with a fifty-cent advertisement," said a farmer in interest. That's a pretty big return. One-half of one percent is not a very large advertising charge. One of these days the farmers will get to be as wise and as shrewd as the fellows who sell real estate and stocks.—Newspaper.

PICNIC AT TAR SPRINGS.

With the beginning of warm days and hot sun shine everyone is looking forward to the big picnic days. Fourth of July is always the largest and longest picnic of the year in the county. Out of the many parties to be given this year, the one at Tar Springs, July 4 will eclipse anything that has ever been attempted in Breckenridge county. The big band will be up, the lake will be there and the "hitch-hitch hoo," the merry-go-round, a big dancing floor, and a fine band and everything to make merry the thousands of people who will attend. No money, thus no trouble in being spared to make this picnic at Tar Springs the grandest, most enjoyable picnic ever given in Breckenridge county. It will surpass any other picnic to be given this year. July 4 is on Wednesday. Mark up your dates now to be at Tar Springs on this day.

Sure cure for Biliousness, Neuralgia, Weakness and All Stomach, Liver, Kidney and Bladder derangements. A wonderful Tonic. At Short & Haynes' Drug Store, 50c.

The Richest Man in the World.

The richest man in the world can not have his kidneys replaced nor live without them. It is important, therefore, to protect these organs. If Foley's Kidney Cure is taken at the first sign of danger, the symptoms will disappear and your health will be restored. As it strengthens and builds up these organs as nothing else will. Oscar Bowman, London, Ky., writes: "I have used Foley's Kidney Cure and take great pleasure in stating it cured me permanently of kidney disease, which certainly would have cost me my life."

Scatica Cure After twenty years of Torture.

For more than twenty years Mr. J. B. Massey, of 3822 Clinton St., Minneapolis, Minn., was tortured by sciatica. The pain and suffering which he endured during this time is beyond comprehension. Nothing gave him any permanent relief but the use of Chamberlain's Pain Balm. One application of that liniment relieved the pain and made sleep and rest possible, and less than one bottle has effected a permanent cure. If troubled with sciatica or rheumatism why not try a 25-cent bottle of Chamberlain's Pain Balm for yourself how quickly it relieves the pain. For sale by Short & Haynes.

SUMMER THIS SUMMER IN COLORADO

Many people put aside all thought of an outing in Colorado because they are accustomed to consider this greatest of American playgrounds as one of those impossible things beyond their means. HOTHOUSE LAMB.

"Hothouse Lamb" is beginning to appear on the menus at many of the first class hotels. This particular delicacy has been in season for a month or more, but it has been so expensive that only the highest priced places have offered it. Now that the regular season is waning and ordinary spring lamb is coming into market the price has dropped to where most good restaurants can touch
it. A quarter of hothouse lamb can be bought, if one is willing to pay $4 or $5 for it. But up to a week or so ago the butchers refused to divide the carcasses, finding ready market for all they could get at from $25 to $30 a piece. As such a lamb seldom weighs more than twenty-five pounds, including pelt and head, it makes the meat come pretty high.

"Hothouse Lamb is an answer to a demand for a new kind of edible animal," said a butcher,
"but its invention was almost an accident. A farmer out in Kansas conceived the idea that an animal could be pushed in its growth the same as a plant or a flower, so he took ten ewes and put them in the cellar of a stable, keeping the place at a uniformly high temperature. When the lambs were born he increased the heat and they grew at a rapid rate."

MATCHES OF OLD TIMES.

Securing a Light With a Tinder Box
a Tedious Process.

Few persons living today remember when the tinder box was a necessity.
But these few are the only ones who thoroughly appreciate the convenience of matches. With the aid of a tinder box one sometimes obtained a light in less than two minutes, but if the conditions were unfavorable one might spend a half hour or more before getting from the reluctant tinder box the spark which would kindle the fire.

The process sounds simple. The lid of the box was removed and a bit of candle stuck in the socket. Next the flint, steel, matches and damper were taken from the box, one match being drawn from the tin and laid ready for immediate use. The handle of the steel was grasped firmly in the left hand and the flint held between the thumb and forefinger of the right hand.
Nine inches was considered the proper distance between the steel and the tin-der. This was measured roughly in the dark by placing the tip of the little finger on the rim of the box, spreading the hand upward and placing the bottom of the steel on the tip of the thumb. The flint was then struck sharply with the steel several times, obliquely and downward.

The impact caused the steel to give off sparks, really minute globules of molten steel, at a temperature of several thousand degrees, and these, falling upon the tinder, soon set it alight.
The box was then taken in the hands and gently blown to cause the smoldering tinder to glow more brightly, and to this glow the point of a sulphur match was quickly applied. The flame of the burning sulphur quickly kindled the wood of the match, and it was then easy to light the candle or morning fire.

Although the process was not difficult for an expert under favorable circumstances, it was at best slow and tedious. One might strike 100 modern matches, one by one, in less time.

The flint commonly used in the tin-der box was such as might be picked up in any flint district. All that was necessary was that it should be so shaped that it could be held easily between the fingers and should have sharp, clear edges. These were commonly sold in the streets of London for a penny and are still manufactured in Brandon, England, for export to Spain, Italy and the east. The matches then ignite spontaneously when struck.

Originally a "match" was any substance which burned readily and slowly. The bit of slow burning hempen rope steeped in a solution of saltpeter, which the ancient gunner carried in order to discharge his arquebus, was a "match." It burned at the rate of about three feet in an hour. The old sulphur match was intended not to produce but to convey fire. In London matches were commonly sold by the poorest and raggedest class of street merchants, who lived in dirty lodgings in the poorest districts, where they made the matches, carrying them about in a basket for sale. Few houses with any pretension escaped without at least one call a day from these venders as long as the trade lasted.

The great difficulty was to find dry drift. Naturally it was very ready to absorb moisture, and when allowed to become damp the difficulty of obtaining a light in the morning was great.
To avoid this trouble the tinder box was usually kept in a specially dry place. Often there was a small niche made on purpose in the brickwork at the back of the large open hearth place. Often the box was placed in the evening on the hearth close to the fire and at bedtime was carried upstairs warm and dry and placed beneath the pillow.

ENGLISH LANDSCAPE.

Their Roads and Bridges are Substantial, Enduring and Picturesque.

In Comparison With American Rural Improvements They Convey The Idea That We Think But Little Of Pottery.

There is an old story which will bear telling again as it illustrates well the disadvantages to be overcome in a new country. It is of an American traveling in England who when out walking one day stopped in front of an old English mansion to admire it and its surroundings. What particularly impressed him was the magnificent sweep of velvet lawns which extended without a daw or blemish from the hedge along the roadway to the very eaves of the house. An old gentleman was at work on the place and at that particular time was pushing a lawn mower across fact, that it is only in certain places that one team can pass another without considerable maneuvering. If all the labor expended upon an American country road were to be concentrated upon a narrow track only wide enough for a farmer's wagon, great improvement in results would be noted, for it is of course much cheaper to lay the foundations, build up the body, and surface a road fourteen feet wide than to put into shape a highway which, at the narrowest point, the ambitious Americans have extended to forty feet. This, in itself, is a point which it intelligently adopted in the many places where the question of a practicable roadway upon which in all kinds of weather and at all times of the year a single team of horses could haul a profitable load to market.

The English farmer uses a cart upon which a single horse draws any where from one to two tons of dead weight. The tires of the wheels are from four to eight inches in breadth, thereby cutting no ruts and each passing vehicle adds to the solidity and smoothness of the road in that its wheels serve as effective rollers.

ENGLISH COUNTRY ROAD AND BRIDGE, CROSSING RAILROAD TRACK.

the sword. The American halted him and with the usual freedom and inquisitiveness of a nationality asked many questions as to the conduct of affairs in England. The Englishman, in the garden was conversing with "Toby," his dog, and the American, "how do you like your own life here? I have a place in America and I am trying to make a lawn around the house, but it doesn't seem to do well." The old gardener scratched his head and, looking doubtfully at the American, he said: "You must have a good soil and a good surface soil, and the soil must be well tilled when you must roll it, and cut it and water it, and keep on doing this until it's tight."

A CENTURY TO MAKE A LAWN.
The American agreed with him that the process was simple, and then asked, "How long will it take to do before the lawn is like that one?" The old gardener again spoke doubtfully, but finally gave it as his opinion that if his directions were followed from anywhere from fifty to a hundred years the results would be all that could be desired.

This same idea might also apply to the roads and bridges throughout England, for much of their excellence is due to the fact that their foundations were laid scores of years ago and generation after generation of workers has been tinkering at them ever since. In fact, the roads built by the Romans now serve as the foundations for some of the best known English highways, and to the south of London, east and west through the beautiful country of Surrey there is a road now greatly patronized by the owners of motor cars in its beginning was the highway beaten hard by the maddened feet of the early centuries as they toiled to the east coast from Wales with their back-breaking burdens of tin. This road was afterwards improved in its texture and grade because of its being the highway for the pilgrims to Canterbury. It is still standing in places by the way trees planted perhaps a thousand years ago to furnish shade—the sturdy British archers.

ENGLISH ROADS VERY NARROW.
In the first place the English road is generally narrow, so narrow, in BAD FOR COUNTERFEITERS.

Secret Service is Hard Pushing this Dangerous Class of Criminals.

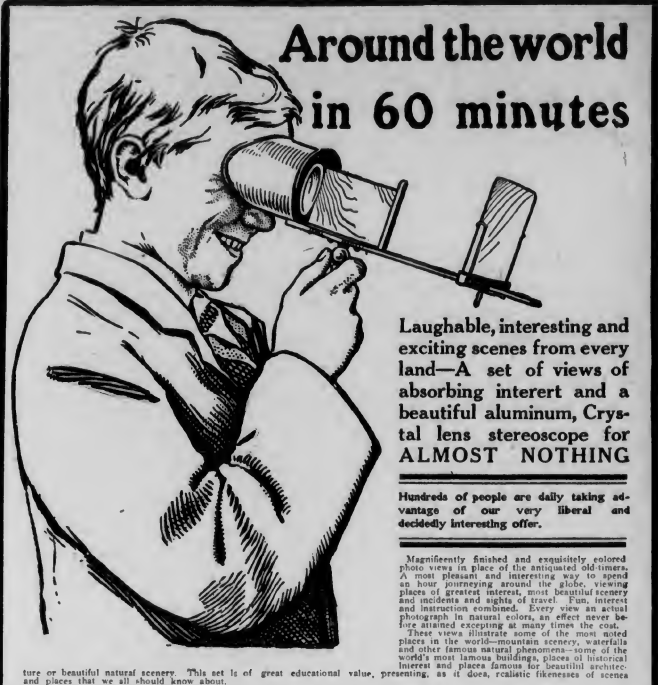

Detectives Kept on Alert to Cope With Clever and Brainy Schemes for Passing Illegal Money—The King of Counterfeiters.

This has been a bad year for criminals. This statement is based on what was brought out at the convention of the Police Chiefs Association of New York State, an address delivered by the president of the International Association of Police Chiefs and by the operations of the various police bureaus of the United States government. The secret service division of the Treasury alone caused the arrest of 532 persons charged with various crimes. Of those taken into custody forty-one were arrested for counterfeiting the currency, fifty-two for altering alterations in the currency, 344 for counterfeiting coin and the remainder for various violations of the United States statutes. Of the 532 alleged offenders, 382 were native Americans, forty-two were Italians (some of whom were naturalized) and thirteen were Austrians. The largest number of arrests were made in Pennsylvania where those apprehended numbered ninety-four. New York followed with seventy-seven arrests, Ohio with thirty-five, California with twenty-nine, Missouri with twenty-three and in the remaining instances every state and territory with the exception of Alaska was represented.

As compared with last year there was a decrease in the amount of counterfeit currency seized by government officers and an increase in the amount of counterfeit coin confiscated. The total face value of the notes seized was $36,834, against $44,350 the preceding year, and of the spurious coin, $24,110 as against $16,419 the year before. The number of plates for printing counterfeit bills captured by the government was 165 and the number of stamps and molds for casting and stamping counterfeit coins was 454. Nearly all this stuff was seized by the Treasury before it had been placed in circulation. Nine classes of counterfeit notes were placed in circulation and of these, in the opinion of the Treasury, the worst only four were cleverly enough executed to be called dangerous.

RAISING SMALL BILLS.

The feature of the work of makers of false money this year was in raising the denomination of bills. There was rather a remarkable increase in this illicit industry and the raisers were particularly busy in circulating these altered obligations in Ohio, Indiana, Illinois and other states of the middle west. It is believed by the officers of the secret service that the leading offenders in this division of criminal work were captured, though there is no doubt that many altered bills are still passing from hand to hand through the channels of trade. Counterfeiters in the United States do not restrict their operations to the manufacture of counterfeit money, and one of the skillful pieces of work done by the secret service men was the apprehension of counterfeiters of counterfeiters who were issuing fraudulent obligations of the Austro-Hungarian government.

ERUPTION OF KRAKATOA.

haunted. The waves were then, strange to say, reflected back from their point of convergence to retrace their steps to Krakatoa. Starting from Central Java, the waves described a series of enlarging circles, until they embraced the whole earth. Then, advancing into the Pacific hemisphere, they gradually contracted until they had regained the Straits of Sunda, from which they had set forth about thirty-six hours previously. Here was indeed, a unique experience. The air waves had twice gone from end to end of the globe. Even then the atmosphere did not subside until, after some more oscillations of gradually fading intensity, at last they became evanescent.

But, besides these phenomenal undulations, the eruption of Krakatoa has taught us other lessons on the constitution of our atmosphere. We previously knew little, or I might almost say nothing, as to the conditions prevailing above the height of our plane of vision. We may be more altogether ignorant of what the wind might be at an altitude of, say, twenty miles. Krakatoa has drawn into our windows prodigious quantities of dust, hundreds of cubic miles of air were then deprived of that invisibility which they had hitherto maintained. With eyes full of astonishment, men watched those vast volumes of Krakatoa dust start on a tremendous journey. Westward the dust of Krakatoa took its way. Before the occurrence of that eruption no one had the slightest suspicion that for first and last, twenty miles over our heads, a mighty tempest is incessantly hurrying with a speed much greater than that of the awful hurricanes which once laid to large part of Calcutta on the ground and killed so many of its inhabitants. Fortunately for humanity, this great "trade-wind" does not come within less than twenty miles of the earth's surface, for if it did, it would be the fearful destruction that its intermittent blasts would produce—blasts fatal for humanity. When this great wind had become charged with the dust of Krakatoa, the time, it stood revealed to the only time, it stood revealed to the human vision. Then it was seen that this wind circled round the earth in the vicinity of the equator and completed its circuit in about thirteen days.

In some violin experiments in a menagerie the influence of the instrument was greatest on the puma, which became much excited when lively music was played, but was soothed by slower melodies. Wolves showed an appreciative interest, lions and tigers were terrified, leopards were unconcerned, while monkeys stared in wonder at the performer.

A QUAINT CEREMONY

SEARCHING THE VAULTS UNDER THE HOUSES OF PARLIAMENT.

Guy Fawkes Long Ago Made the British Beef Eaters Watchful—How What Was Once an Important Duty is Nowadays Performed.

During the 300 years which have elapsed since Guy Fawkes was discovered in the vaults of the houses of parliament, the custom of the guard has never failed religiously to perform the ceremony of searching the cellars on the eve of the assembly of parliament. Originally an important duty, it has now developed into a quaint and picturesque ceremony. Before the old houses of parliament were burned down in 1834 the search was a reality. Now it is a mere ceremonial, but one which the public would wish maintained. Every year, therefore, every nook and every corner of the dark and noisome vaults had to be carefully searched.

How different the ceremony is conducted at the present day we learn from Sir Lechnold Hennell's interesting book. The officials of the lord great chamberlain, the special deputy police of the house of parliament, with the commissioner or deputy commissioner of police, assemble in the prince's or peers' robing room and await the coming of the yeomen of the guard, consisting of an exon, the sergeant major and ten yeomen. On their arrival a procession is formed, headed by the chief of police in charge. Partisans are laid aside, and each yeoman is handed one of the same little oil lamps which have probably been in use from time immemorial.

The exon gives the word, the procession moves off, and the search commences. Cautiously descending by iron ladders for the yeomen are no longer young—and traversing iron grating floors, they gradually descend to the vaults below. The walls are all painted or colored white, and the ceiling of the modern electric lamps, which brilliantly illuminate every part of the vaults, it would be difficult for the smallest object to remain undetected. Slowly the party descends to the prince's chamber, lamps are returned, partisans are shouldered, the exon returns to the lord great chamberlain that the search has been well and truly carried out and that the houses of parliament can assemble in safety, the official part of the ceremony is over, and the guard is dismissed from duty.

The men then proceed, according to ancient custom, to the offices of Messrs. Bellamy, the firm of wine and spirits, where by special permission the gallant yeomen drink the king's health in the best port. In 1760 the king of Belgium was the first to be invited to the houses of parliament to be permitted to rent and use as wine cellar one portion of the empty vaults. This was granted to the king of Belgium, who was the first to be invited to the houses of parliament to be permitted to rent and use as wine cellar one portion of the empty vaults. This was granted to the king of Belgium, who was the first to be invited to the houses of parliament to be permitted to rent and use as wine cellar one portion of the empty vaults.

The yeomen of the guard are a most fascinating institution, the first permanent body guard of England's sovereign and the first permanent corps of trained soldiers in our history. Imitated perhaps from the Scottish guard of the French kings, the corps was formed as far back as the year 1485. When Henry VII. landed in England from Normandy he was accompanied by a small guard of English and Welsh who had shared his exile. They were with him at Bosworth, and surrounded by them he received the crown of England.

It was this body of personal attendants that became, in September, 1485, the yeomen of the guard, ever since the personal body guard of the sovereign of England. It still retains the picturesque dress with the original title of yeomen, which they were under its original name, the Yeomen of the Guard. The original duty of the corps was to protect the king in battle and otherwise, and he was accompanied by his yeomen wherever he went. The yeomen of the guard have taken part in many a battle and siege and in most royal pageants from the Field of the Cloth of Gold to the opening of parliament.

When his majesty the king opens parliament the best eaters will be in close attendance on the state coach. The office of captain of the yeomen is a political one and changes with the government, but the lieutenant, the ensign, the clerk of the cheque, or adjutant, and the exons are required to have served in the army or navy, and have seen war service. The yeomen must have been noncommissioned officers in the army or marines of at least 10 years' standing, and the appointments, as may be imagined, are the most highly prized of any which are open to old soldiers. The yeomen of the guard are very frequently confounded with the wardens of the Tower, but they are now a distinct body. When Henry VIII. relinquished the Tower as a residence, he was not unkind of the dignity attaching to it. Twelve yeomen of the guard were left behind as Tower wardens, who then became a separate organization, with a slightly different dress, but with the same pay and allowances.

BRECKENRIDGE COUNTY RELICS.

Fordville, Ky., May 15.—For Home-Coming Week in Louisville June 13 to 17 Breckinridge county possesses, perhaps, more than any equal share of relics of the early settlers and especially in the out-of-the-way of the county. It is strange how many relics of the early settlers are now carefully preserved and a complete list of them would be hard to obtain and would read like a long catalogue. Table must date of George Earleidge, Jr. known to be over 100 years old. Bear Trap, and shaving skillet of Walker Moore, over 100 years old. American biography, of Benj. Burroughs, of Washington's army. Old Encyclopedia of the late Squire Lawrence Matthews and also many other old boxes of the early settlers—about six dozen whole, six spinning wheels, twelve hickies, besides many smaller pots, candle mantels, snuffers, powder horns. One of Breckinridge county's old relics is her old drum, now owned by Edwin Ford.
